

The Edge

Breakfast, but not at Tiffany's

Barry Egan

email: began@independent.ie

NADINE Coyle has obviously got over her recent recent break-up with her cheating Desperate Housewives boyfriend Jesse Metcalfe. The Girls Aloud singer found consolation with an English dreamboat in The Morrison Hotel last Friday night.

They were clearly discussing Nadine's performance with Girls Aloud at the Point earlier that evening because Nadine and her mystery hunk didn't emerge out of their suite until 11am.

They missed breakfast and, mystifyingly, didn't order room service. But then again maybe they were getting their own room service. Fellow band members Kimberly and Sarah looked glam with sunglasses strapped to their heads as they ate their breakfast. By the time the Derry-born Nadine came down, according to a source, she "shrieked at a friend she saw in the Cafe Bar to tell the tour bus that she had missed breakfast and the the hotel management organised for croissants, apple juice and fruit to be taken on the tour bus with her." Poor diddums.

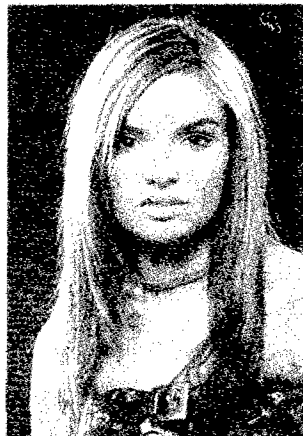

The Morrison must be applying for a 'celebs in excelsius' licence because the following Saturday, Beyonce checked into the penthouse with her boyfriend Jay Z. Presumably to build up her energy levels, the superstar ordered a turkey salad sandwich on brown bread up to the suite.

Incidentally, she and Jay Z used the loading bay to avoid the Moan On Sunday's paps: simple really - the car drives into the loading bay of the hotel and she goes through the service area to get in to it and then the hatch goes up and they drive off in their limo to the Point.

After the sold-out show, Beyonce proved how hip she is by taking a raincheck on her own private party in the upstairs area of Lillies (which she had entirely booked out) to return to her xandau at The Morrison for Champagne, chicken wings and chicken tenders with blue cheese and honey and mustard dips.

Now you know how she does it. She eats.

NADINE: Satisfied her appetites. All of them